

PROFILE

Australian Hi-Fi

Australian Hi-Fi magazine is Australia's longest-running and most successful hi-fi title. Published continuously since 1969, Australian Hi-Fi has gained an international reputation for the high quality and unerring technical accuracy of its authoritative reviews of hi-fi equipment, from portables to state-of-the-art audiophile systems, and everything in between.

Australian Hi-Fi magazine's editor, Greg Borrowman, is Australia's best-known and most respected audio writer, with a 42-year background in audio electronics and music that includes teaching at TAFE and contributing a regular column to The Sydney Morning Herald for two decades. He has written about hi-fi and audio for many Australian magazines and newspapers, including The Age and The Melbourne Herald. He has also contributed to overseas hi-fi journals such as Stereophile.

Australian Hi-Fi Magazine's mission statement is to ensure its readers achieve the highest possible sound quality in their homes, so the magazine encourages its readers to buy only high-quality components, to regularly upgrade their hi-fi equipment, and to use only the best quality accessories and cabling. Every issue of Australian Hi-Fi magazine is packed with reviews of audio equipment, information about new products and reviews of music that will best show off a hi-fi system, so you can be guaranteed that your advertisement will always appear in a dynamic, exciting environment before an audience that is 100 per cent committed to buying hi-fi components

Australian Hi-Fi magazine is published six times yearly and distributed nationally.

Digital Edition

As well as being available in print from newsagencies around Australia and by subscription, Australian Hi-Fi Magazine is now also available in electronic format for multiple platforms including iPad, Android, PC and Mac, while additional exclusive content, including news, reviews and feature articles, is continually posted on Australian Hi-Fi's dynamic website, at www.avhub.com.au/hi-fi and on its active Facebook page.
